Bridges Out of Poverty

with Jodi Pfarr

Over 50% of families involved in the child welfare court system are near or below the federal poverty line. The impact of generational poverty affects how families will respond to court and social services intervention, so understanding how poverty impacts families will allow courts and court professionals to become more effective in working with them.

Bridges Out of Poverty is an informative and engaging series of best practices, ideas, and concrete tools with proven results that addresses all causes of poverty in order to build resources, improve job retention rates, reduce health inequities, improve outcomes, and support those who are moving out of poverty.

This seminar is a 2-day workshop geared toward court professionals, including judges, county attorneys, parents attorneys, Guardians ad Litem, caseworkers, supervisors, NFC/DHHS administrators, CASA, Foster Care Review Board, parent partners, service providers and others.
